WILCOX & GIBBS SEWING MACHINE.

We would call attention to the following facts in connection with this Machine which renders it superior to any other in use.

It forms a flat elastic seam which will not rip in wear.

It is entirely noiseless;

A patented device prevents its being turned backward;

The needle cannot be set wrong;

Can be used successfully without other instructions than accompany the Machine;

It received the Gold Medal of the American Institute in 1863. For particulars, enquire of

REVIVAL OF TEMPERANCE DISCUSSION AT THE EAST.—Some of the Eastern papers are agitating the subject of the proposed repeal of the Maine Liquor Law. Dr. Bacon thus explains in the N. Y. Independent the failure of that law:

I. The Maine law forgets one great principle which ought always to be regarded in legislation, and by those who desire to legislate. I refer to the principle which Christ announced and justified when he said, "Because of the hardness of your hearts Moses suffered you to put away your wives." The law which Moses, guided by divine wisdom, gave to the Hebrews for the restraint of arbitrary divorce was not absolutely good; it was far short of what any legislator, enlightened as to the sanctity of marriage and the mischiefs which arise from the easy dissolution of the marriage bond, would have desired to establish. It was a law which no Christian nation would permit to stand in the statute book. But it was the best which the Hebrew tribes at the time of their exodus from Egypt, would endure. A better law would not have been as good for that people, with the traditions and habits which they had inherited, because a better law would not have commended itself to their moral sense. That law of Moses can be defended only as Christ defended it, by saying that the moral sense of the people in regard to the rights of a husband in his family would not have recognized and honored a better law. If that which is ordained and proclaimed as law does not express the aggregate moral sense of the people, it will be a failure. Either it will be simply inoperative, or the attempt to enforce it by penalties will be resented as oppressive, and will provoke an ever increasing hostility. * * * The men who framed the Maine law knew full well that such a prohibition would not be sustained one hour by the aggregate moral sense of the people. Far be it from me to deny the honesty and heartiness with which you and many others hold that the drinking of a glass of wine or of lager beer is essentially a sin against God and a crime against society; but we know, and all who were concerned in enacting the Maine law know, that there are millions of people in this country who believe no such thing. That is the reason why the Maine law undertook to suppress, not the drinking of such liquors nor the buying, but only the selling. That same fact is the reason why the Maine law, having been enacted, cannot be enforced. So long as the statute remains a dead letter in the several States in which it had been enacted, it does not interfere with the liberty of the millions whose moral sense does not recognize the temperate use of fermented and spirituous liquors either as a crime against society, or as a sin against God; and for that reason it cannot be anything else than a dead letter, except for a little while.

II. The Maine law seems to forget some of the most essential differences between a despotic or military government, and a government controlled by the people. It may be doubted whether any absolute monarch in the civilized world could permanently enforce such a statute against the opinions of half his subjects. Even in Turkey where the established religion abhors all use of wine, and where the Koran is not only the religious rule of faith and practice, but also the supreme statute book for the Moslem population, the intemperate use of wine and spirits is a growing vice among Mohammedans, and all the rigor of the government cannot suppress the sale and use of such drinks. But in a country like ours, where power, especially in time of peace, is decentralized and distributed as widely as possible, where the administration of law depends so largely on municipal functionaries in cities and towns or in counties, where the trial by jury is one of the most cherished of the traditions that enter into the popular conception of liberty, where all power, executive and judicial as well as legislative, is continually returning into the hands of the people to be disposed of anew, directly or indirectly, in their municipal or general elections, and where the questions of national or local interest that divide the public mind are always changing and always producing new combinations of parties, the permanent and effectual enforcement of a statute which one half or one third of the people regard as oppressive or unreasonable is a political impossibility.

TOM, THE BLIND NEGRO PIANIST.—The New York Express thus alludes to the latest musical prodigy in that city:

We have native pianists and English pianists, and German and French and Continental pianists, and male and female, and juvenile and aged, and all other sorts of pianists, but until now we have never had a black pianist. To render these classes and the colors complete, Black Tom comes. Tom is not a wonderful player—although he is a surprising one. He is blind, and therefore performs exclusively by ear. He will play a piece of four pages, immediately after hearing it, with, of course, the reasonable errors of form. But we are acquainted with more than one young learner who can do the same thing. Tom's excellent memory and acute hearing belong to him in common with all blind people. While playing he seems seized with a musical phrenzy and rolls his eyes and distorts his features like a clown in a circus. With the exception of his talent of imitation that he is gifted with, the boy's mind is said to be a blank, and he is little else than an inspired idiot. He pounds away at the piano at times as if the instrument had injured him, and he was revenging himself on it—and his eyes roll about in their most ecstatic convulsions when his hands make most noise. Those who delight in thunder, storms and cannonadings, and all ear-splitting sounds, will be pleased to hear Tom, 75 per cent. of whose musical feats are of that nature.

A CURT ANSWER.—Some years ago an old sign painter, who was very cross, very gruff, and a little deaf, was engaged to paint the Ten Commandments on some tablets in a church not five miles from Buffalo. He worked two days at it, and at the end of the second day the pastor of the church came to see how the work progressed. The old man stood by, smoking a short pipe, as the reverend gentleman ran his eyes over the tables. "Eh!" said the pastor, as his familiar eye detected something wrong in the wording of the precepts, "why, you careless old person, you have left a part of one of the commandments entirely out, don't you see?"

"No such thing," said the old man, putting on his spectacles, "no, nothing left out—where?"

"Why there," persisted the pastor, "look at them in the Bible; you have left some of the commandments out."

"Well, what if I have?" said old obstinacy, as he ran his eye complacently over his work, "what if I have? There is more there now than you'll keep!"

Another and a more correct artist was employed the next day.

MEN GOSSIPS.—To speak ill of your friend to his face is bad manners, but to asperse him to a party of mutual friends when he is not there is not "quite the thing." It is really sad to find how common this practice is in upper class and middle class dwellings. We once spent the day at the house of a literary man of some distinction, who should also have known better; yet the conversation could be compared to nothing so much as to the passing sentence of a jail delivery of notorious characters. Author and artist vied with each other in judicial or rather in extra judicial severity. Statesmen, literary men, painters, clergymen, patriots, ladies—all were arraigned and condemned. One was a [illegible], another a common cheat, a third a hypocrite, a fourth a clever profligate, a fifth a profligate and [illegible], a sixth a snob and sycophant, and so on.

A PUZZLED IRISHMAN.—Mr. O'Flaherty undertook to tell how many were at the party. "The two Congressmen were one, myself was two, [illegible] Finn was three, and [illegible] who the divil was the fourth? [illegible] the two [illegible] were [illegible] Mike [illegible] was two, myself was three, and [illegible] there was four, [illegible] St. Patrick couldn't tell the name of the other. Now it's [illegible] Mike [illegible] the two Congressmen was [illegible] myself was [illegible] and by my sowl I think there was [illegible] there after all."

There is a difference in time, you know, between this country and Europe," said a gent to a newly arrived Irishman. "For instance your friends in Cork are [illegible] fast asleep by this time, while we are enjoying ourselves in the early evening." "That's always the way," exclaimed Pat. "Ireland never gets justice yet."

Popular Movement in Europe

The Revolution in America which began in 1776 and which resulted in the achievement of our independence and the recognition of the United States by England as a separate nationality in 1783 exerted a greater influence than any other single popular movement had ever done. The French were already preparing to overthrow the Bourbon dynasty to wrest their liberties from the hands of the political rulers and those who oppressed them and to take a stand and achieve a victory in favor of popular rights. The successful issue of our Revolution and the wonderful example which was here afforded of the capacity of an intelligent people for self government and for the enjoyment of true liberty, stimulated the French in the course they had begun. The greatest popular uprising ever known, soon followed and though the revolutionists in their blind fury suffered themselves to be diverted from their true object, the cause of human liberty was nevertheless advanced further during those twenty stormy years than it had been during the two centuries that preceded the great commotion.

Since that day the influence of America upon the Old World has been operating silently, and yet with power. During our recent struggle the eyes of the nations were upon us, and the advocates of popular rights, the world over, with unusual interest awaited the result. Again the United States gives mankind an example of what liberty can achieve. Again the great idea of self government has triumphed. Again all Europe, with a desire to emulate America, begins to shake with rising murmurs of oppressed man. Even in England, the country which possesses the most liberal Government in the world save that of the United States, the masses are clamorous for an extension of popular rights. In the olden time it was accounted a sacrilege for the people, even of that kingdom to call in question the authority of their rulers. The people now boldly inquire by what right a privileged class can presume to rule over a greater number of their fellow men against their will. The strife there has assumed the phase of a conflict between the democratic and the aristocratic idea, nor will it cease until the latter gives way and the former gains an absolute triumph.

In Germany the democratic idea is rapidly gaining strength. A general discontent prevails among the lower classes. The question of wages is not the only one which causes this agitation. The people are demanding more liberty—larger rights than have hitherto been given them. We hear of the organization of a popular party and a recent meeting of its champions at Darmstadt. An effort has been made in some communities by the superior class to bring things back to the feudal system, but against this the people make a prompt resistance. Troops have had to interfere. As it is in Germany, so it is in France and Italy. The people resolve to have their natural and political rights. Popular government will triumph.

LET US SEE.—The Statesman professes to follow President Johnson so closely that it "don't differ from him in anything that it knows of." Now let us see. That paper's heartless tirade against the whole colored race, published only a few weeks ago, will be remembered. Here is what President Johnson said about the same time to a regiment of black troops: "This is your country as well as everybody's country. This country is founded upon a principle of equality." (How does the Statesman, which in its last issue denied the equality of human rights, like this expression?) "The institution of slavery is overthrown, but another problem remains to be solved, and that is, can four millions of people with all the prejudices of the whites against them, take their places in the community and be made to work harmoniously in our system? This is the question to be determined. Let us make the experiment and make it in good faith. I trust the system can be made to work harmoniously at once."

The difference between the foregoing sentiments and the Statesman's authoritative assertion that the colored race must be forever excluded from our system, is about as apparent as words can make it. The President wants to try the experiment of incorporating them into our system, while the Statesman pronounces against the attempt before the thing is tried. The President calls them "my countrymen," how does his Salem admirer like that? He says to the negro troops, "you have paid me the compliment to call on me," does this not shock the Statesman's sense of propriety? Again he charges them in this wise: "Inculcate among your children, as well as among your associates, that virtue, that merit, that intelligence, are the standards to be observed. This is the way to make white men black, and black men white." We fear to continue these quotations lest we may cause the Statesman to forswear the company of that horrid negro-equality man, Andrew Johnson. We will simply ask the editor of that paper to procure and read this speech. He should read it in private so that he may not be seen to blush for the President who has the shamelessness to say that "virtue makes a white man black and a black man white."

Hereafter whenever the Statesman finds that it "don't differ from President Johnson in anything that it knows of," let it compare its views as regards the colored race with its own Copperhead sentiments, and the grounds of difference will appear very strikingly.

LUDICROUS.—A Southern paper speaking of the action of the Government in sending Commissioners to the South to report on the condition of affairs in that quarter, gravely makes the following ludicrous suggestion:

There are now living at the North three distinguished ex Presidents, hale, hearty old men who would no doubt cheerfully perform any patriotic work President Johnson might call upon them to do. Their names are Millard Fillmore, Franklin Pierce and James Buchanan. Let Mr Johnson appoint these distinguished gentlemen a Commission and appeal to them, in the name of our common country, to accept the trust, to proceed South, and make a report to the Government on the situation of affairs, the temper of our people, etc, with recommendations as to the policy which should control Government action in the future. A report from such men would be just, truthful and impartial, would satisfy the South, would be believed by the North and would do great good in whatever aspect it may be viewed.

This idea can't be beat. It surely never originated with a Southern man. A Northern Copperhead is the only person who could make such a suggestion. Fillmore, "Poor" Pierce and the "Old Public Functionary" would constitute such a Commission as was never seen. "Breathes there a man" who can control his risibilities on the mere thought of any one asking President Johnson to appoint this fossilized trinity—this strange conglomeration of inefficiency, compounded of senility and treason, "to perform a patriotic work." We regard this idea as the brightest coruscation of Copperhead genius that has lately appeared.

In view of the great destitution that prevails in some parts of the South the people there call themselves "unfortunate." This is a perversion of the word. "Unfortunate" in what? We suppose they think their misfortune consists in not having possessed more means wherewith to resist the Government of the United States.

A Woolen Factory is to be erected on Puget Sound. The sum of $90,000 has been subscribed for that purpose.

The Change of Sentiment that Caused the War

It is said that in 1819 at a dinner given to Mr Adams at Brown's Hotel in Washington John C. Calhoun proposed the sentiment, "Universal suffrage and universal education." Did Mr Calhoun really entertain such a sentiment at heart? If so his subsequent acts and declarations show a most radical change, a change which is most sad to contemplate as judged by its inevitable results.—O. I. P.

From the known opinions of Mr Calhoun during the early part of his career it is more than probable that he gave utterance to the above sentiment. The wonderful change that was wrought in his opinions by means of the institution of slavery and through the necessity as he said or supposed of making it an all controlling power in our political and social system, is strongly illustrated by contrasting the generous sentiment above quoted with the narrow dogmas which guided his later life. A further illustration of the apostacy of Southern men from their early faith is found in the case of another distinguished Carolinian, George M Duffie. No stronger argument for National Sovereignty and against State rights in the modern sense of this term was ever framed than came from this distinguished man. In his early maturity he wrote a controversial pamphlet in which he said:

"I assert that when any conflict shall occur between the General and State Governments, as to the extent of their respective powers, 'each party has a right to judge for itself.' I confess I am at a loss to know, how such a proposition ought to be treated. No climax of political heresies can be imagined, in which this might not fairly claim the most prominent place. It resolves the Government at once into the elements of physical force, and introduces us directly into a scene of anarchy and blood. There is not a single power delegated to the General Government, which it would not be in the power of every State Government to destroy under the authority of this licentious principle. It will be only necessary for a State Legislature to pass a law, forbidding that which the Federal Legislature enjoins, or enjoining what the Federal Legislature forbids, and the work is accomplished. Perhaps you would require the State Judiciary to pronounce the State law constitutional. I will illustrate by a few examples.

"Suppose Congress should pass a law 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts and excises,' and that a State Legislature should pass another, declaring the objects for which the revenue was intended were unconstitutional, and therefore prohibiting the officers of the General Government, by severe penalties, from collecting the taxes, duties, imposts and excises. Suppose Congress should pass a law 'to raise an army' for a national war and a State Legislature pass another, declaring the war 'wicked, unrighteous and unconstitutional,' and therefore prohibiting the officers of the General Government, under heavy penalties, from recruiting soldiers, within the limits of the State. Suppose Congress should pass a law 'for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States,' and a State government should pronounce it unconstitutional, and provide heavy penalties against all officers, judicial or ministerial, who should attempt to enforce it. I need not multiply cases, for if you will duly consider these, you will find enough to satiate your keenest relish for anarchy and disorder. In all the above cases, you would say 'each party has a right to judge for itself,' and of course to enforce its judgment. You might then behold a revenue officer of the United States confined in a State dungeon, for obeying the revenue laws of Congress &c. And all this would unavoidably result in giving the State rulers a right to resist the General Government, or in a civil war to establish its legitimate authority, consequences, either of which is incompatible with the very notion of government. To suppose that the General Government has a constitutional right to exercise certain powers, which must operate upon the people of the States, and yet that the Government of each State has the right to fix and determine its own relative powers and by necessary consequence to limit the powers of the General Government, is to suppose the existence of two contradictory and inconsistent rights. In all governments, there must be some one supreme power, in other words, every question that can arise, as to the constitutional extent of the powers of different classes of functionaries must be susceptible of a legal and peaceable determination, by some tribunal of acknowledged authority or force must be the inevitable consequence. And where force begins, government ends.

"And it is the more astonishing, that you have assumed positions, involving such tremendous consequences, when we consider that they are in direct opposition to the strict letter of the Constitution your favorite test of the extent of delegated powers. It is therein provided 'that the Constitution and the laws of the United States, which shall be made in pursuance thereof,' shall be the supreme law of the land, and the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.' And again, 'the judicial power (of the United States) shall extend to all cases in law and equity, arising under this Constitution the laws of the United States, and treaties made or which shall be made, under their authority.' Nothing can be more plain than that the 'strict letter' of the Constitution does make the laws of Congress supreme, enjoining obedience upon the State functionaries, and making void the laws of a State if contrary thereto. And to give the provisions a sanction of a nature peculiarly impressive, 'the members of the several State Legislatures and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support the Constitution of the United States.'

"It is not less evident, that it belongs to the National Judiciary, to pronounce upon the constitutionality or unconstitutionality of the laws of the National Legislature. Its jurisdiction extends to all cases arising under them, and it is hard to conceive how in any possible case a federal judge can decide a case, arising under a law, without pronouncing upon the constitutionality of that law. In fact, it would be vain and idle to make the laws of Congress supreme, if the National Judiciary had not the power of enforcing them. For you can hardly be ignorant, that a law is a dead letter without an organ to expound and an instrument to enforce it. I should suppose, therefore, that no professional man could hesitate in saying that a forcible opposition to the judgment of the federal court founded upon an act of Congress, by whatever State authority that opposition might be authorized, would be the very case which the Convention had in view, when they made provision 'for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union.' But I sincerely hope, that your licentious doctrines will never have the effect of misleading the State authorities so far, as to render this terrible resort unavoidable. I trust the farewell address of Washington, admonishing his fellow citizens to 'frown indignantly upon those who preach up doctrines tending to disunion,' is not yet forgotten."

After reading the above conclusive argument of a Southern man in vindication of National Sovereignty against the unwarrantable assumptions of a champion of State rights, and then marking the change that was wrought in the Southern mind in relation to this important subject, it at once appears where the ideas which led to the war had their origin. Under the political tutelage of the leaders who were devoted to human slavery there was a complete abandonment of national sentiment by the whole people of the South. The North insisted on preserving our nationality in accordance with the purposes of the founders of the Government; the South apostatized from this faith and set up State Sovereignty instead of adhering to National Supremacy. By thus contrasting the earlier with the later opinions of Southern statesmen the cause and scope of our late struggle are rendered so clear that he who runs may read.

The direct tax of Mississippi due the United States at the time the late Convention was held to restore the State to the Union amounted to $413,084 13. This sum the State declared it was too poor to pay at once. All its substance had been spent in the service of treason and rebellion and hence the Legislature was impelled to issue State bonds for the required amount.

A NEW TOWN.—A survey and map has been made and lots are offered for sale at White Bluffs, on the Columbia, eighty or ninety miles above this point. The projectors wish to draw the travel by their proposed town that will go to Montana by the Pend Oreille route.—Umatilla Advertiser.

John Gawne, Esq, who has been shipping flour direct from Millvill, Shasta county, California, during the present summer has sold, since he commenced business here about 195,000 pounds of flour.—O[illegible]

A little girl after returning from church, where she saw a collection taken up for the first time related what took place, and among other things she said, with all her childish innocence, that "a man passed around a plate that had some money on it, but I didn't take any."

We clip as follows from yesterday's Mountaineer:

The lodes in Flint District, which is located southwest of Silver City, Owyhee, are rapidly rising in popular estimation. They are much larger than those of War Eagle Mountain and appear to crop with greater regularity. Their general direction is nearly north and south, their width from two to fifteen feet and have a moderate dip to the east. Among the principal lodes are the U. S. Grant, Monitor, Polar Star, Pompey, Twilight, Peace Democrat, Harriet Nowell, Leviathan, Rising Star, Excelsior, [illegible], Gem, Boyd & Kellar, Chrysopolis and Great Mogul. In the matter of accessibility, good pasturage, abundant fuel and good water privileges this district is unexcelled. Gold and silver are both found in the rock, with a large preponderance of the latter. Ten tons of the rock from the Rising Star were imperfectly roasted and worked by Messrs Moore & Fogus at their works on the Morning Star, and the yield was $200 a ton from average rock. This lode is twelve feet in width. The Gem lode is from eight to ten feet in thickness, and some pretty thorough tests indicate that its rock will pay from $15 to $500 a ton. Many of the owners in the district are very wisely going to work on their lodes probably thinking that if their property will sell well, it will pay them well to keep it.

For weeks past large bands of sheep cattle and horses have been crossing the Columbia river at this point, to be driven to the rich pastures on the Yakima, Attanum and Kootatas. This is a move in the right direction and will tend to bring the district to the north of us into notice, amongst stock growers. Each drover and stock grower who winters his stock on these lands will become a representative of the interests of the section which only needs to be well known to be settled with a sufficiency of the right kind of people.

By a gentleman just down from Walla Walla, we learn that a man was killed four miles above that town, some days since, by a man named Boise. It seems that there was a dispute between the parties about certain cattle breaking into a field and the man who was killed assaulted Boise with an axe, who, in turn, threw a flat iron at the man, which struck him on the head, and instantly killed him. Boise came to town and delivered himself up to the authorities. He is an elderly man, of great strength and forbearing disposition, and was probably justified in the act.

A GALE.—Sunday, from the accounts we got, the wind must have been blowing at a tremendous rate along the foot of the Blue Mountains. Between Crawford's and Meacham's stations, the road is strewn with trees thrown down by its force. A stage coach standing at Crawford's was overturned. At Walla Walla an unfinished building was demolished, and those living in many of the wooden buildings left and sought safety in the brick fire proofs. The bell belonging to the fire department was tumbled to the ground from a temporary scaffold upon which it was hung, and damaged to a considerable extent. Two thirds of the signs and awnings were torn from their fastenings, and for awhile it was unsafe to be in the streets. No one received any injuries, by the accounts given. Farmers had their fences and hayricks thrown down and scattered. At Wallula the steamer Spray was forced against the wharf boat and received damages that required her to go to Celilo for repairs. In the vicinity of our town the wind was blowing strongly on Saturday, the day before, and Sunday was blowing moderately, but at no time with force enough to suggest the idea of damages from its power.—Umatilla Advertiser.

[illegible] report submitted a report of the establishment of the grades of Lincoln, Grant, Sherman and Carruthers [illegible] ing from 50½ to 54 feet above the [illegible] grade, which was adopted.

[illegible] were ordered drawn upon the appropriate [illegible] of claims against the city, as follows: [illegible] superintending printing of codified ordinances [illegible] L. Pittock, advertising, $30 50; George [illegible] cross-walks at city plaza, $50; J. Un[illegible] the dredger, $11 08; Oregon Steam Navigation [illegible] towing dredger to wharf $30; D. Mon[illegible] for construction of dredger, $15; A. [illegible] Co., iron work for dredger $98 10; [illegible] as city assessor, $390.

[illegible] of J. N. Dolph, for stamps and services as [illegible] in cases before the Supreme Court, $807.

[illegible] on accounts and current expenses [illegible].

[illegible] to provide for the time and manner of [illegible] street, was amended and passed.

[illegible] to prevent persons from carrying concealed [illegible] within the corporate limits of the [illegible] reading.

[illegible] providing for the care and boarding of [illegible] and fixing the pay of the Marshal as city [illegible].

[illegible] ing the committee on ways and [illegible] the amount of taxes necessary to be [illegible] property of the city for the ensuing [illegible].

[illegible].—During the past week it has been [illegible] to have communication with East Port[land] [illegible] to overlook the matter, know[illegible] been occasioned by the severity of the [illegible] now that the storm has abated the occasion [illegible] yet in the manner of crossing the river [illegible] the foot of Stark street is in wretched [illegible] is not so much as a plank for footmen to [illegible] down the grade upon, to keep out of the [illegible] only dangerous for pedestrians, but [illegible] wait for teams. The boat does not [illegible] any landing that is afforded, and owners [illegible] to trust the limbs of their animals [illegible] necessary to reach the boat. On [illegible] that have come in from the country [illegible] products, after fruitless efforts to cross [illegible] to abandon their mission and [illegible] Portland would flourish and become [illegible] could have uninterrupted communication [illegible] West side. Property is abundant [illegible] many new residences have been [illegible] year, but the difficulty of at[illegible] river with a machine not adapted [illegible] it was constructed, and there [illegible] supply the deficiency, has disap[pointed] [illegible] at East Portland and attending [illegible] and deters many from carrying [illegible] houses on that side. The [illegible] on people who own farms [illegible] may be said that the new boat is an [illegible] not been fairly tried. Then there [illegible] boat for use in cases of emergency [illegible] said of the [illegible]. It is simply [illegible] or an individual, should [illegible] of time Mr. Knott has been in the [illegible] place, without providing a suitable [illegible] by the course he is [illegible] and while we are firmly of the [illegible] for [illegible] managed, could be made [illegible] shortly as [illegible] the [illegible] city. When a [illegible] to work for the public good, [illegible] as little [illegible]. The [illegible] in ferry matters at [illegible] that if the [illegible] vantage, he be invited to sell out [illegible] men are wanted for that [illegible].

[illegible] PAVEMENT—STREETS.—The cleaning of [illegible], just completed, is almost as much [illegible] original laying of it on Front [str]eet was not recognizable before it was [illegible] now that it is thoroughly [illegible] up people [illegible] it is good, and appreciate what it was [illegible] McAdamized portion of Front street [illegible] that is, what remains of it, [illegible] good a show to display taste. Our re[illegible] are very [illegible]; they don't suit [illegible] have asserted that there was never a [illegible], nor has there been, nor is there [illegible] a pavement, from Morrison to Pine, [illegible] that it is clean, [illegible] very near be[illegible] should be, but there is still a chance [illegible] on that. At the crossing of Pine street [illegible] a pool exactly where a person wish[ing] [illegible] from one block to the other. [illegible] Front street, several thousand dol[lars] [illegible] the past season to fill up and Mc[Adamize] [illegible] The stone used, to begin with, was [illegible] for that purpose; next, there was [illegible] made, and half of the street, [illegible] front of Mr. Knott's, Mr. Vaughn's, [illegible] and Mr. Hunsacker's property, is cov[ered] [illegible] the spiles from under the buildings on the [illegible] promising the structure over to the [illegible] the general improvement on Washing[ton] [illegible] are becoming anxious to know how [illegible] without sidewalks.

[illegible].—In Circuit Court yesterday the only [illegible] were those of the State vs. Wm. Wain[illegible] indicted for larceny of a coat [illegible] house of George Hinckle. The verdict [illegible] guilty, as charged in the indictment [illegible] be sentenced until Monday. The [illegible] Smith, indicted for assault [illegible] with intent to kill, was submitted [illegible] it will be remembered, occurred [illegible] on Sauvies' Island. Smith made the [illegible] Oalloway, who attempted to run, in[illegible] in his back with a pocket knife. [illegible] by Smith, when the latter [illegible] with the knife—hit Oalloway in the [illegible] leaving the blade sticking in [illegible] the victim by this time, and [illegible] for the act was that [illegible] the character of the [illegible] Hodgkinson and Mitchell con[illegible] Semple and Stevens the [illegible] Attorney, in summing up, [illegible] statement of the facts to the [illegible] followed in an eloquent burst of [illegible], and [illegible] him for an at[illegible] one who had called into [illegible] of a noble and virtuous sister. His [illegible] and the audience were only restrain[ed] [illegible] by the Court ordering a man in[illegible] on the first intimation of such satisfaction.

[illegible].—The attention of Justice Hoffman [illegible] yesterday in hearing a case of [illegible] trial by jury, the principals in which [illegible]. The defendant in the case Mrs. [illegible] Patrick Norton was accused of [illegible] in the street, and upon trial and conviction [illegible] costs. BUTTERFIELD'S OVERLAND COACHES.—The Salt Lake Union Vedette of November 1st has the following:

It was stated some days ago in a Denver paper that on account of that recent robbery and burning of a Butterfield line coach between Denver and Atchison the stages would be taken off for the winter, from the Smoky Hill route. The following from the Atchison Champion and the Denver News of October 19th, speaks to the contrary:

The following dispatch has just been received as we go to press:

ATCHISON, October 19th.

Arrived here on the 17th. No trouble on the road by Indians, and five companies on the road to guard it. D. A. B. [illegible], General Superintendent.

Mr. Clark, of Nevada arrived in this city last evening by the Butterfield line, and says that the line is now free of trouble, and the coaches have resumed running their regular trips. He says further that there is no doubt whatever but that the recent attack on the line was made by white men in disguise, whose sole object was plunder, as they manifested no disposition whatever to injure any one, but only to laugh on the party away and secure their property.

SOUTHERN AGRICULTURE.—Among the subjects canvassed in the August Report from the agricultural department at Washington, is the question as to the best mode of inducing an emigration from the North to the South. It is argued that the only basis upon which northern laborers will emigrate to the Southern States is the certainty that they can secure homesteads. The agricultural labor of the west or north will not go where it cannot own the lands it cultivates, either at once or prospectively. In Mexico two thirds of this labor does not own land; in England a yet great proportion are tenants. Its condition in both countries is well known, and American agricultural labor, holding a perfect equality with all other pursuits or conditions, will never consent to any other terms than that of ownership of its homestead. The question, therefore, is whether southern landowners will put their land into market in such parcels as ordinary farmers can afford to purchase. Upon this point the writer holds that these landholders would find it greatly to their interest thus to sell their lands, since their value would be vastly increased by the introduction of free labor, and it is therefore probable that, out of regard to their own pockets such a policy may ultimately, if not immediately, be adopted.

CHICO ROUTE.—We publish, for the benefit of the public on the Columbia River, the following the Owyhee Avalanche of the 11th inst:

Arnold's train arrived here last week from California over the Chico route, with sixteen thousand pounds of flour. There has been brought into this place and Silver City, during the past summer, two hundred and eleven thousand pounds of flour, over the Chico route, and fifty thousand pounds of barley. Thirty-five days has been the usual time consumed in making the trip with ox teams this season, but when the road is thoroughly packed, and becomes hard by constant travel, it will be made in much less time. Enough has been demonstrated this season to show that by another year Owyhee will be supplied direct from California, with flour, meal, barley, bacon, etc., at lower rates than the same articles can possibly be supplied from any other source. In fact, the products of the Sacramento valley will entirely control the markets of Owyhee by another summer.

INDIAN OUTRAGE AND MURDER.—While Frank Drake was camped at or near the mouth of the Owyhee, on the first of this month, his camp was attacked by half a dozen or more Indians, who crept in the tall grass within a hundred feet of the camp, and fired rapidly at Drake's party, consisting of four men, killing a man by the name of Clark, who was in the act of catching the bell mare, which he succeeded in doing, and saved a large train of mules, but was subsequently shot the second time, and soon died. Either of the wounds were fatal. Drake's party returned the fire and the bullets flew about very careless and thick for a short time, but with no effect except to drive the Indians off and save the mules, with the loss of a good man worth more than all the Indians in the Snake River country. The Indians drove off some fifteen head of cattle from teamsters camped lower down, and were pursued by two of Drake's party and two other men most of the day, and all but five of the cattle returned. No Indians captured.—Idaho Statesman.

Mrs. O—— was sitting at dinner with her little boy of four or five years old, when a be-whiskered foreigner came in and took his seat on the opposite side of the table. The child stared at him for a while with astonishment, till the mystery was solved; when, suddenly, in rather too loud a voice, he cried out to his mother, "Ma, ma! he has got a mouth; I saw him put a tater in it."

Madam Gassan (Lucille Maure) the oldest actress on the French stage, is just dead, at the age of seventy-six. She was a native of Lyons, and came out with great eclat in 1806, at Milan, in the company of the Imperial French Theatre, then in the service of Prince Eugene, Viceroy of Italy. She played for upwards of fifty-one years.

KNEW HIM VERY WELL.—"Come here, my little fellow," said a gentleman to a youngster of five years, while sitting in a parlor where a large company were assembled. "Do you know me?" "Yeth, thir." "Who am I? Let me hear." "You ith the man who kithed mamma when papa was in New York."

DANGER OF DEFERRING.—That apparently trifling and persistent hacking cough, portends something serious. Consumption stares you in the face. Be wise then and check it at once, by a free use of Newell's Pulmonary Syrup.

The Great Dog Fight in Frogtown

There is an excellent moral to the following story which is told with great skill It shows us how a whole village was summer torn to pieces by a fight between two puppies

The most remarkable fight on record came off at Frogtown on the frontier of Maine some years ago It engrossed the entire community in one indiscriminate melee—interminable lawsuits, suits at law, destruction of the town and its down fall [illegible]

A fanciful genius, named Joe Tucker, a man about town, a lounger with no visible means of support, a do-nothing, loafing, cigar smoking, good natured fellow, owned a pretty beast, always at Joe's heels, and known as well as his master, and liked far better by the Frogtowners One day Joe and his dog were passing Gumbo's grocery store when an ugly looking dog standing inside a wood wagon, bounded on to Joe Tucker's dog, knocked him heels over head, and so frightened Bob Carter's wife, who was passing towards her husband's blacksmith shop with his dinner, that she stumbled backwards and her old sun bonnet flopped off and scared the horse attached to the wagon He started, hit Lathorum's barber pole, upset the load of wood, all of which falling down Gumbo's refreshment cellar struck one of Gumbo's children on the head, killing it for a short time stone dead, and so alarmed Mrs Gumbo that she dropped a stew pan of boiling hot oysters into her customer's lap, who sat waiting for the savory confection by a table in the corner, instead of the dish. Mrs Gumbo rushed for the child, the customer for the door. Mrs Gumbo screamed, the customer yelled!

"Oh! oh! ch ch ch, my poor child," cried Mrs Gumbo

"Eh, e h e e e," screamed the poor child.

"Oh, murder r r! Oh my everlasting sir, I'm scalded to all eternity!"

"Murder! murder!" roared the poor customer

The horse, a part of the wagon, and some wood were on their mad career The owner of the strange dog came out of the store just in time to see Joe Tucker seize a rock to demolish the savage dog, and not waiting to see Joe let drive, gave him such a pop on the back that poor Joe fell forty feet up the street, and striking a long ladder upon which Jim Elderly was perched, paint pot in hand, some thirty feet above terra firma brought ladder Jim and paint pot sprawling to the earth, dripping poor Jim for life, and sprinkling blue paint over the broadcloths, satinets and calicoes of Abraham Miller, a formal and even-tempered Quaker, who ran out of the door just as the two dogs had got fairly at it, hip and thigh, nip and catch. A glance at things secured to convince Abraham of the true state of the case, and, in an unusually elevated tone of voice Abraham called out to Joe Tucker, who had righted up

"Joseph Tucker, thy dog's a-fighting!"

"Let 'em fight it out," yelled the pugnacious owner of the strange dog "Let 'em fight it out I'll bet a log of wood my dog can beat any dog in town, and I can beat the owner"

We have said Abraham Miller was a quiet man Quakers are proverbially so But the gauntlet thrown down by the stranger from the country stirred the gall of Abraham, he rushed into the store and from the back yard, having slipped his collar, Abraham brought forth a brindle cur, strong, low and powerful.

"Friend" said the excited Quaker, "thy dog shall be well beaten, I promise thee, Hyke seize upon him!"

"Turk, here boy!"

And the dogs went at it.

Bob Carter, the smith, coming up in time to hear the stranger's defiance to the town, and bent on a fight with somebody for the damages to his wife, clamped the collar of the stranger, and by a series of ten-pound tap upon the face, back and sides of his bully antagonist, with his natural sledge hammers, Bob stirred up the strength and ire of the bully stranger to the top of his compass and they made sparks fly dreadfully.

Joe Tucker's dog, reinforced by Abraham Miller's, took a fresh start, and between the two, the strange dog was being cruelly put to his stumps Deacon Pugh, one of the most pious and substantial men in Frogtown, came up, and indeed the whole town was assembling, and Deacon Pugh, armed with a heavy walking stick, and shocked at the spectacle before him, marched up to the dogs, exclaiming as he did so:

"Fie, fie, for shame! disgraceful! you mean citizens of Frogtown, will you stand by and—"

"Don't thee, don't thee strike my dog, Deacon Pugh," cried Abraham Miller, advancing toward the Deacon, who was about to cut right and left with his cane

"Your dogs!" shouted the Deacon, with evident furor

"Not my dogs, Deacon Pugh," said the Quaker.

"What did you say so for, then?" shouted the Deacon.

"I never said my dogs, Deacon Pugh."

"You did," yelled the Deacon,

"Deacon Pugh, thee speaks groundlessly," said the Quaker.

"You tell a falsehood, Abraham Miller"

"Thee utters a mendacious assertion," reiterated Abraham

"You—you—tell a lie!" shouted the Deacon

"Thee hast provoked my evil passion, Deacon Pugh," shouted the stalwart Quaker, "and I will chastise thee."

And into the Deacon's wool went the Quaker

The Deacon, nothing loth, entered into the fight, and we leave them to "nip and tuck" to look to the stranger and Bob Carter, who fought, and fit, and fit and fought, until Squire Catchum and the constable came up, and in the attempt to preserve peace and arrest the offenders, the Squire was thrust through the window of a neighboring watch-maker, doing a heap of damage, while lawyer Hooker, in attempting to aid the constable, was hit in mistake by the furious blacksmith, in the short ribs, and went reeling down Gumbo's cellar with frightful velocity. The friends and fellow churchmen of Deacon Pugh took sides against the Quaker antagonist, and then the shop-boys of Abraham, seeing their employer thus beset, came to the rescue, while two Irishmen, full of fun and frolic, believing it to be a "free fight," tried their hands, and sticks upon the combatants so indiscriminately that in less than half an hour the happy village of Frogtown was shaken from its propriety by one grand, sublimely ridiculous, and most terrible battle.

Heads and windows were smashed; children and women screamed; dogs barked, and so furious, mad and excited became the whole community, that a quiet looker-on, if there had been any, would have believed that the evil ones were all in Frogtown.

A heavy thunder storm finally put an end to the row, the dogs were more or less killed, a child severely wounded, a man scalded, wagon broke, the horse ran himself to death, his owner badly beaten by Bob Carter, whose wife and the wives of many others were dangerously scarred, the painter was crippled, dry goods ruined, a Quaker and a Deacon, two Irishmen, lawer Hooker, 'Squire Catchem, and some fifty others, shamefully whipped Lawsuits ensued, feuds followed, and the entire peace and good repute of Frogtown annihilated—all by a remarkable dog fight.

CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES.—According to the Toronto Leader, Earl Grey's dispatch of 1849, intimating that if necessary the whole force of the Empire would be used to maintain British supremacy in Canada, did not more effectually smother the annexationist sentiment of that day than the return of prosperity has now. It is a singular freak of trade that the United States are willing to pay forty cents a bushel more for wheat than it is worth in England The Leader concludes that the Americans will, under any circumstances, be purchasers of Canadian cattle for a year or two to come, whether the reciprocity treaty be renewed or not

The Montreal Herald protests strongly against the much discussed plan of Confederation and fortification in Canada, and says of it, with a warm argument for a peace and industrial policy

Thus then the expenditure of millions upon the proposed road through the frozen barrens north of Lake Superior instead of through the fat prairies of the Mississippi and Red river valleys, with a natural traffic stands upon Confederation as to the Hindoo cosmogony the world stands upon the tortoise When we shall have done all this and without war incurred a war debt when we shall have otherwise decreased the comparative attractions of the country by the expulsion of a large portion of our people into profitless military service while the Americans shall have returned to their old policy of keeping up an infinitesimal military force we may probably feel ourselves as safe as Denmark or as independent as Belgium which with a larger number of mounted guns to the square mile and a larger number of soldiers per thousand of population than any other country, besides the understood protection of all Europe in her favor, fears to resist the will of France when Louis Napoleon gives her the insulting order to drive Victor Hugo or Mr Rogeard out of her territory On the other hand, we have the policy of peaceful internal development as an industrial people intending no evil to others and though conscious that we are not and cannot be as strong as our neighbors confident that we are no more likely to be harrassed on that account, than a small man is likely to be knocked down because he is standing by the side of a big one

The celebrated divine, Dr Smith, on one occasion preached before the Corporation of Tailors He took for his text the appropriate words—"A remnant shall be saved"

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

WEEKLY REVIEW

PORTLAND, November 24th, 1865

For the period under review there has been but little transpiring of interest The storm which threatened us last week broke forth in all its fury, interrupting telegraphic communication, and rendering the bar at the mouth of the Columbia impassible, besides breaking up the regularity of the mails south, hence we are isolated and entirely ignorant of what is transpiring in the outer world. Several vessels including the Active for Victoria, and the Sierra Nevada for San Francisco, were delayed at Astoria and unable to proceed on their voyages up to latest accounts on Wednesday last [illegible] due, and supposed to be unable to cross the bar, consequently there have been no arrivals during the week [illegible]

The Willamette river [illegible] navigation with all navigable [illegible] at Salem [illegible] The receipts [illegible] which is placed in [illegible] the requirements of the market [illegible] The Active has a cargo valued at [illegible] 1,800 of apples flour butter [illegible] Victoria. The Sierra Nevada carries an amount [illegible] chiefly of lumber the whole for San Francisco [illegible] valued at about [illegible] the complete [illegible] weeks

The receipts of bullion from the mines continue large, the most part of which comes from Idaho

The bullion assayed in the District of Oregon during the month of October past, as we are informed by U. S. Assessor Frazar, taken as a basis of the monthly returns to his office, shows a decrease [illegible] corresponding period last year of $20,027 76. The figures are as follows

October, 1864	$421 787 60
1865	401 760 24
Decrease	$20,027 76

In October, 1864, there were fewer assay offices in the mines and less rich bullion being shipped to the mint and to the assayers below. The amount of bullion has actually greatly increased [illegible] always made [illegible] now chiefly for our own merchants

During the year ending August 31st, 1865 the coin value of bullion assayed in the District of Oregon amounted to $1,824,546, the currency value being a little over 58 per cent, as the average rate of currency, was $6 224 469, during the same period. The amount of revenue derived from the tax paid during the year eight months at the rate of five mills and four months being at the rate of six mills was $30 172 40

New discoveries are being almost daily made from the John Day to the Big Blackfoot region, which it would be impossible to enumerate and they are represented as being in no way inferior to the richness of the mines already opened and upon which men have been at work the past three years There are a large number of persons constantly arriving in the city from all sections east of the Cascade mountains and all agree in extolling the excellence of the country. The route from Portland to the rich mines of Montana will be opened for travel via Pend d'Oreille Lake by the first day of March. The contract has been let for the construction of a steamer to be placed on that lake, and the machinery is well on the way there from the Columbia river

The news from the upper Columbia is encouraging Capt. White has probably before this launched a steamer for the trade above Colville, and in that section a brisk business is anticipated for 1866. The new boat on Snake river, above Farewell Bend, is also being pushed forward with energy, and altogether we may say there is every indication for greater activity, and a large increase of trade for the next year

There is very little change in the money market First class securities range about the same, one per cent. The London Times of a late date states that the report of the Directors of the Bank of British Columbia, which was to have been presented on the 3d of October last, shows the amount of profits for the half year ending the 30th of June last, to be £20,076, and recommends a dividend at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, and the addition of £7,000 to reserve, leaving £3,763 to be carried forward. The latest quotations for the shares of the Bank of British Columbia are £24 10 bid—a premium of £4 10 per share

Legal tender notes and mining shares continue to attract little attention and small sales only are reported

Wholesale and Jobbing Prices.

PORTLAND, November 24th, 1865

The interruption of telegraphic communication, renders it uncertain to make any changes in the wholesale and jobbing prices current. The non arrival of vessels bound to this port with supplies has occasioned a scarcity in some few articles, and stocks are running low, but with a light demand, under the arrival of three or four ships now due, stocks will be sensibly increased The market is inactive.

Domestic Produce Market.

PORTLAND, November 24, 1865.

There is no improvement apparent in this market for the period under review The business for the current season, has thus far been below the average of any season for the past three years yet there is an excess of products, according to all we are able to learn, over any past year in the State There is a good demand for flour, and bacon is in excess of the demand. The Mercantile Gazette of San Francisco says there is no scarcity of available tonnage in that port, and freights have declined to low paying rates, but owing to farmers holding their crops apprehensive of another year of drouth in California and being generally disinclined to sell at current rates, the price of flour and wheat is beyond the limits of most for sign [illegible] on hand In this connection it is remarked that the British ship Seaparent, which we reported as sailing for Europe with a cargo of wheat a short time since was loaded with difficulty The Seaparent [illegible] was not made with a view to profit, but for the purpose of getting a fine loading [illegible] at the least expense to her owners She was not willing to accept a guano charter, and as an alternative, took the grain at 2c cents [illegible] after a long and patient waiting, wearied with frequent telegraphing and long delay in replying to letters. She was dispatched to Queenstown, Ireland, by Wm H Jarvis

A late New York paper has the following regarding the [illegible] of an English demand for American breadstuffs [illegible] of wheat in Great Britain

[illegible]

There has been some inquiry during the past week for barley for the [illegible] from California, and we learn that our sister state is now exporting barley chiefly to Peru and New York at an average of [illegible] per pound. Oats remain firm with a small demand

During the week we have to note the arrival of a considerable number of large droves of hogs, principally for the markets. There is little demand and as a general thing the carcasses are light There is a demand for hogs in the California market and we are told contracts have recently been made to a great extent for the stock in Southern Oregon for future delivery at 10@11 cents on foot. Buyers are paying in this market 9 cents per pound for dressed hogs
